Remember the School Meeting.

The Age sincerely hopes that the citizens of Aitkin will see the necessity of providing adequately for the education of their children and that they will attend the school meeting tomorrow (Wednesday) evening and express themselves as in favor of the much needed new school building. It is essential not alone to provide shelter for the pupils, but to see that they are provided with a building that is warm, well lighted and well ventilated, that their health may not be impaired. This could not be said of the present building even if were large enough to accommodate the pupils. Neither could this be successfully accomplished by erecting small houses in different parts of the town. To having the pleasure of spending his school hours in a pleasant, roomy and healthful building and enjoying the associations of all the other pupils should more than compensate any suburbanite for walking a little extra distance to school. By all means let us have one good spacious building, which will accommodate all the pupils at least until the city doubles its population.

The Proposed Drainage Canal.

Maj. Abbott, the United States Engineer, who made the survey for the proposed canal from Waldeck to Pine Knoll, the object of which is to take up the overflow of water, has made his report to the government, and judging from his figures he aims to discourage the government from taking any action in the matter. He estimates that the construction of the canal would cost about $940,000, and that the purchase of the land for the right of way would take $500,000 more. This looks rather discouraging.

Killed by the Cars.

Last Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock as Herman Freitag was walking on the railroad track, on his way from town to his home one mile east, he was overtaken and run over by an outgoing freight train running at high speed. The trainmen saw the accident and they stopped as soon as possible and went back to where the man was lying, picked him up and brought him back to town. It was found that the train had passed over an arm and a leg. The unfortunate man was taken to the hospital at Brainerd on the 11 o'clock passenger train, and there his injured limbs were amputated and everything possible done to save life, but he died on Sunday. The remains were brought to Aitkin Monday, and the funeral services were held in the afternoon.

Mr. Freitag was an old soldier, about 54 years old, and leaves a wife and five children. He came here with his family from near Mankato about a year ago. He is somewhat deaf, which possibly is the reason he did not hear the train.

A New Passenger Train.

N. D. Barker is responsible for the following. It appeared in the Sauk Center Avalanche last week, and we hope it's true: "There is talk in railroad circles that the Northern Pacific contemplates putting on a new passenger train to run from Duluth via Brainerd and Little Falls, through Sauk Centre to Morris. Until recently a double passenger service has been in operation between Duluth and Staples, but the day train was taken off about a month ago, and there have been a number of kicks registered by the towns affected. A good train between Little Falls and Morris on this run would catch a lot of patronage that now avoids the slow mixed train as much as possible, and the new scheme ought to be a paying one. It is to be hoped that the Northern Pacific will try it at least."

Hit Him Hard.

A well known attorney is responsible for the following: "As everybody knows, I did some canvassing with —, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the — district, during the campaign just closed. One night, after the speeches were over, we decided to drive several miles into the country, to see a farmer who was considered a political power in his locality. On reaching the place we found he was away from home, and would not return for several days. We were obliged to remain all night, as it was too late to drive back to town. The farmer's wife desired to show us to bed in the spare room, but something seemed to bother —, and he hesitated. Finally he said: 'If you will give us a couple of quilts we will sleep in the haymow. Your husband is away and it might start some scandal to have a man who is running for Congress sleep in the house.' The lady protested, but — was firm, and we slept in the haymow. Next morning, just as we were coming out of our sleeping quarters, the farmer's wife was letting the cows out of the yard. She then went to a little shed, near the barn, opened the door and hit a big gentleman cow who was sleeping therein with a club, saying: 'Get up, you good-for-nothing brute, and go with the cows. You're not running for Congress. Then I looked at — and — looked at me, and this is the first time the matter has been mentioned since that day.'

An Absent-Minded Man.

An Eureka man who shall be nameless here, like the most of us, is terribly down on flies. He has been known to throw out a cup of coffee with three flies in it, and when he finds flies in his syrup begins to kick then and there, and it takes four men to hold and make him spread it on his pancakes. He uses sticky flypaper to good effect and fairly gloats over the flies he catches. But it is getting dark and we must hasten on with our story. He placed to fly paper in two chairs and placed them near the window. He came home late the other evening and what did he do but plump down in one of those chairs. He got up and pawed at the fly paper, but he couldn't get it off his pants. He took them off and while tearing frantically at the fly paper, sat down in the other chair.—Ex.
